special war correspondent:-

HIROSHIMA via SHANGHAI, Dec. 1, evening. I have just returned to Hiroshima from the front at Port Arthur, and have had an interview with Viscount Mutsu, Foreign Minister, about certain reported misconduct on the part of the Japanese army at Port Arthur. I informed the Foreign Minister that from a commanding hill I watched the Japanese soldiers enter the town. The Chinese resisted to the last moment; and I even saw Chinese in plain clothes, with concealed arms, ultimately taking part in the fight. Explosive bullets were also found. The Japaneso soldiers afterwards reported that the civilians of the place fired upon them from the houses, and therefore the Japanese considered it necessary to show no quarter and to exterminate

All sports have their accidents, but we don't hear of them, and they are not carefully collected and published daily, to be reprinted over and over again, and served up months after. Are we to believe that there are no accidents in cycling, no fatalities in boxing, no ossualties in hunting, no lives lost in swimming, fishing, shooting, and in cricket. they had to abundon their position, and legalise professionalism. I argue that professionalism at Rusby shoud be sanctioned, under very stringent e aditions. Shamamateurs and uncontrolled professionalism have been the bane and the curse of every sport into which they have crept. Let us be honest, fair, manly, aboveboard in our dealings with men, and let not the servants become the masters, as all sham amateurs invariably do. The Rugby Union and the county clubs have the experience of their Association and Scotch brothern to aid them-not in framing more rules-but to assist them in drawing up wise provisions for the better regulation of professionalism. The Football Association is an older body than the Rugby Union, and owing to the remarkable development of the dribbling code has had a wider experience than the Union, and a conference between the two might show the Union the pitfalls and places to be avoided. If professionalism be legalised by the Rugby authorities, well-defined limits must be put to the payment of players, posching must be prohibited under severe pains and penalties, transfers must be made not easy but difficult, each player must be liceused, the smoller clubs must be protected, and the amateurs must be preserved, and not ornshed. These are things which must be thought about. A far-seeing, wise scheme at the commencement will make professionalism possible, will encourage honesty, and will put the sham amateur into his proper position-that of a servant and not of a master. Knowing what I do of Rugby football, I say be honest and encourage honesty. Do not be Paritanical and stiff b cked and indirectly promote clandestine contracts and back-stairs diplomacy.

THE GROWTH OF FOOTBALL IN THE ARMY. Have you noticed how football is growing in the Army? A team representing the British Army, which is rather a large order, met the Corinthians on Saturday, at the Oval, but Tommy Atkins was no match for the gentlemen amateurs, who won by 8 gools to 1. Just in the same way the Broughton Rangers of Manchester met the Enniskillen Dragoons at the Enghy game. The Rangers, who are not by any means the best club in Lancashire, gained a victory by 47 points (4 goals, 9 tries) to 3 points (1 try). In other words, the soldiers got over the line once in each game. In each of these matches we see that class will tell. So far as Association is concerned the game is very popular in the Army, because there is an Army Challenge Cup to compete for. Ingland, Ireland, and Scotland have been divided into eleven regimental districts for the purposes of football The various corps have formed over 70 football teams and these have been duly drawn in ties. The first round of their competition has to be completed by to-day (Saturday) between 7: As might naturally be expected such a movement as this has emanated from two old Etopians. Mr. Harry McCalmont, the millionaire owner of Ising lass, founded the Army Football Assoc when he was in the Scots Guards, and M. Calmont was well supported by Captain Pulteney, a gentleman who still retains terest in the game and in Army football. tain Pulteney, who belongs to the Footbal sociation, is a son of the Rev. R. I'. Pulten Market Harborough, and was also educa Eton. Like Mr. McCalmont, he was a footballer at Eton, and carried his passion him into the army. When the 2nd Scots G formed their first football team he was upon to play centre forward, which he c gestral statons. May football prosper Army, for it is a sport eminently suit soldiers, and likely to develop their fig abilities.

The height of mean sea-level has been determined, from the tidal observations of 1887 and 1888, as 5.51 feet above zero of the tide-gange at the Kowloon Tidal Observatory; and the Low-water Ordinary Spring-Tides, to which datum the heights in these Tables are referred, as 2.87 feet above zero.

The heights in the Tables marked with a minus sign (—) are below Low-water Ordinary Spring-Tides, and should be subtracted from the constants given above.
